In his early youth he was distinguished for his proficiency in the classics. In his Confessions of an Opium Ester it is stated that at the age of it he "could harangue an Athenian mob." Greek seemed to be his mother tongue. In May, 1800, he ran away from school and went to London, where he nearly petished of starvation. For three years he suffered the torments of hun-ger and lack of whither, an experience which ger and lack of shelter—an experience which induced bodily infirmities that led him to the use of ophine. For ten years he indulged in the soothing, seductive poison. At the end of this dissipation, or at what he strove to make the end, a terrible grawing of the stomach svertook him, which would yield to nothing but opium. His descriptions of the visions which floated before him while under the influence of the drug, in the Confessions and Suspiria De Profundis, are the most splendid compositions in the language. S.P. B. Randolph, a mulatio, who for some time has classes in a year under scott of departed spirits, now puts in a new claim to public admiration, on the ground that he can be in two or three places at the game time. It sappears, from a statement in the Spiritual Age, that while accounty redging us at a gentlement house in floaton, he appeared in the bedroom of his host during the night, and was seen by the lady, "with a budy susfie playing upon his countenance," notwithstanding she "knew his body was in another part of the nouse," as the door was locked, "Randolph's ghost remained there fall ten minutes, when he vanished. It might, by some, be regarded as a fortunate circumstance for Mr. Handolph that his host was a believer in spiritualism.

Randolph claims, also, to have appeared to a lady thirty miles distant from his body. Arrangements are making for a series of experiments, Randolph having promised to appear at three different places, the fundred miles apart, in the same hour, and his friends intend, if he succeeds, to bring the matter before the leading solentific bodies of both Europe and America.

It is suggested that the Democratic members of Concress should be.

The President ruled any amendments at this stage of the bill out of order.

The question then occurring on the passage of the bill.

Mr. Taylor then called for the ayes and noes, and being seconded in his call by Mr. Doans and others, the ayes and noes were taken, with the following result:

Ayes—Boy kin, Collier, Doans, Purnas, Little, Miller, Porter, Reeves—S.

Noes—Dandy and Taylor—2.

So the bill passed.

Mr. Taylor, in giving his vote, wished to enter his present upon the journals against the passage of this bill. He said he desired to statch is reasons for the vote he intended to give. He had been about the first other the Territory to advocate the adoption of a State Constitution. The people south of the Platic rever were in favor of a State organization, provided the hill for a constitutional convention was just, fair and equitable in its provisions. The bill under Any people south of the realise river were in favor of a State organization, provided the bill for a constitutional convention was just, fair and equitable in its provisions. The bill under consideration contained many odious provisions, and some that were farcical in the extreme. He should therefore vote against the bill for the following reasons:

1st. Because there is no guard thrown around the elective franchise, but the doors are thrown wide open to frand, while the actual fone following the extra the Territory will be disfranchised, and the reign of wrong would be perpetuated if Nebraska anouald be admitted, but he had little, hories of this.

2d. Because the bill permits every person to vote.

2d. Because the bill provides that the Governor and Secretary shall determine by lot in ease of a tie between two candidates for the convention.

Winter Late as the Gold Misse.

A clever correspondent of the Missouri Democrat, writing from Denver City and Auraria under date of December Sib, dishes up the following tit-bits of gensip:

Dancing and duching are the order of our day. There are said to be grand balls she partial coming of is both the cities of Denver and Auraria, aimit on tri-scaled heaceforth until further notice. They have become one of our peculiar institutions. The grand ball last flurtedry night, at the Sutherland Hotel, was a fine and very fashionable affair. Everything was done exactly up to the handle. It was a fire and very fashionable affair. Everything was done exactly up to the handle. It was a free private party at that. There were some firly ladics and perhaps sighty sanismes present. It was during one of the seta, on this occasion, that the much takes it duch between Oscar B. Totton, Esq., and Dr. Drake McDowell, both of your city originated. The matter caused much excitement, slikough at the last tid not assume to much. The charming lady partner of the Doctor was given to understand, through the consulting auryses, that the circumference of her could be described for the state of the conducting any asspicion of its being mad, and were suffering great distress from their feets.

Micabar and arrangers Science.—A strange and harrible affair is reported to have occurred in DeKalb Co. Ind., not, long since. And old couple named Knapp, who appear to have lived jogether unpleasantly, got into a squabble one-morning, at which their son "Jakey" was present. He, probably used to such scenes, thought flothing of it, and went off to work. "Beturning at night-be found both of them gene, and the house in terrible confusion. Starting out to search for them, he met his mother, who told him that the "old man would not trouble them any more, but Jakey must not any anything him that the "old man would not trouble them any more, but Jaker must not say anything about it." The neighbors hearing of the affair made a search and found the body of the old man, terribly nangled, in the well. The old woman was arreated on a charge of having committed the murder, and lodged in the jail at Auburn. A few days ago she attempted to kill herself. She made a horrid gash in her abdomen, just below the stomach, from which the intestines protraded. These she cut off and three them in the stove. The wound is mortal, and though not deaft at the last report, she was considered beyond hope of recovery.
